

For Immediate Release
May 28, 2009

WORKING WARDROBES LAUNCHES FREE SUIT EVENT TO HELP JOBLESS WOMEN FIND WORK

Leading nonprofit reaches out to help Orange County's unemployed through The Hanger, its chain of upscale resale boutiques.

FOUNTAIN VALLEY, CA – Women who are unemployed in Orange County will get a special two-for-one boost through Working Wardrobes' upcoming "I Got the Job Event," held June 1-8 at The Hanger, a chain of upscale resale boutiques that help fund the organization's programs and services.

At all three Hanger locations in Brea, Tustin and Laguna Niguel, customers struggling with unemployment can receive a free women's suit with the purchase of any other suit. Additionally, The Hanger will provide certificates for a free professional resume consultation with a Working Wardrobes career developer at the organization's Fountain Valley Career Center.

Proceeds from The Hanger shops help Working Wardrobes serve clients from community programs and social service agencies, providing at-risk men and women the necessary tools to re-enter the workforce. During next week's event, The Hanger will expand its support to those in need by providing special offers to customers who are out of work.

"In times of economic crisis, the entire business community can help provide tremendous support to our friends and neighbors who are out of work," said Working Wardrobes CEO/Founder Jerri Rosen. "We hope this special event will provide confidence to the serious job seeker so she can make that lasting impression in the interview and land the job."

The "I Got the Job Event" also highlights the benefits of shopping resale in a difficult economy. The Hanger boutiques carry upscale brands like St. John, Escada, Armani, Ann Taylor and Banana Republic at a fraction of department store prices. Since the first store opening in 2001, The Hanger has cultivated a valued reputation for "great clothes, great prices and a great cause" as it helps Working Wardrobes serve 5,000 at-risk men, women and young each year, enabling them to achieve dignity and self-sufficiency.

For more information about the good work supported by The Hanger boutiques, call (714) 210-2460 or visit www.TheHangerBoutiques.org or www.WorkingWardrobes.org.

#

About Working Wardrobes:

Working Wardrobes, an independent nonprofit organization, empowers men, women and young adults in crises to confidently enter the workforce with career development and wardrobe services. Since 1991, Working Wardrobes has served over 50,000 adults emerging from a wide spectrum of backgrounds including welfare-to-work, alcohol and substance abuse, domestic violence, transitional homelessness, catastrophic illness and traumatic financial losses.

About The Hanger:

The Hanger Resale Boutiques have offered great clothing at great prices to savvy shoppers since 2001. With three locations in Brea, Tustin and Laguna Niguel the enterprise helps generate over 55% of the funding for Working Wardrobes. By utilizing clothing donations not suitable for Working Wardrobes clients, the Hanger Resale Boutiques ensure that all donations make a difference. Ninety cents of every dollar in Hanger sales benefit Working Wardrobes programs and services. The Hanger boutiques carry jackets, blouses, dresses, shoes, jewelry, handbags, and men's clothing at unbeatable prices.