

Orange County News

30K hit hot pavement to Race for the Cure

Sunday, September 26, 2010

Nearly 30,000 people joined the fight against cancer for the annual Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure at Newport Beach on Sunday, Sept. 26, 2010. (KABC Photo)

TAGS: cancer, charity, beach, orange county news

 Comment Now Email Print Report a typo

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (KABC) -- The heat didn't stop nearly 30,000 people from joining the fight against cancer for the annual Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure on Sunday.

The race, which took place in Newport Beach, is the largest such race in the world.

Around 1,700 participants in the 5K run-walk are breast cancer survivors.

Organizers hope to raise three million dollars by the end of October, and 75 percent of that will be used for outreach, screening and treatment programs in Orange County.

The remaining 25 percent goes to the national Susan G. Komen foundation to be used strictly for research.

Do you want the Eyewitness News team to call you? Get a FREE Morning Wake-up Call and personalized weather report at abc7.com/wakeup

(Copyright ©2010 KABC-TV/DT. All Rights Reserved.)