Chemers' 20th Annual Illustration Show

Five prominent illustrators – including “Harry Potter” illustrator Mary GrandPre and “Fancy Nancy’s” Robin Preiss Glasser; the husband-and-wife team of Lou Fancher and Steve Johnson, of “Jim Henson: The Guy Who Played with Puppets”; Elisa Kleven, illustrator of “The Paper Princess”; and Raul Colon, who collaborated with local author Reuben Martinez on “Once Upon a Time: Traditional Latin American Tales” – were on hand for book signings and demonstrations at Chemers Gallery’s 20th Annual Children’s Book Illustration Show at the Enderle Center in Tustin on Dec. 3.

Chemers displayed more than 300 rare original illustrations from Dec. 3 to 17. It is the only gallery in the Western United States that specializes in children’s book illustrations.

Hundreds of art aficionados and book lovers attended the opening event. There were children dressed in tutus and boas, in keeping with “Fancy Nancy”; teens clutching their “Harry Potter” books; and grownups lining to get books autographed for their loved ones.

A portion of proceeds from all art sales benefited Chapman University’s CES K-12 Literacy Programs, which provide world-class tutoring to grade-school students, libraries of custom books and after-school programs.
